

spite fears of a Mexican uprising. The police arrested Emilio Valenzuela, publisher of El Constitucional, a Mexican newspaper. He was charged with printing an editorial seeking to arouse hatred for Americans among the Mexican residents of the city. Eight employees also were taken into custody. The newspaper was suppressed.

The editorial stated the entry of American troops meant that Mexico was losing its honor. It called upon all young men to rally to the Mexican colors.

In connection with the absence of trouble between the American forces and Mexican residents of small towns and ranches, it was learned that the Mexicans are reaping a rich harvest by selling small wares to the United States soldiers.

Army Anxiously Waits For News of Fighting

SAN ANTONIO, March 24.—Army officers at Fort Sam Houston stood close to the telephone instruments today, anxiously awaiting word of the rumored battle between Villa's and a combined force of United States soldiers and Carranzistas at El Paso. No confirmation has yet been received here.

The request made yesterday by General Funston for a full report of American operations south of Casas Grandes has as yet been unanswered, it is stated.

If a shelling shot has been fired at American soldiers by hostile Mexicans since General Pershing's expedition crossed the border nine days ago, Funston directed the man hunt from headquarters here, has not been informed.

While there is a direct conflict in reports received by General Funston concerning the alleged revolt by General Herrera, former Carranzista commander in Chihuahua, it is stated at headquarters that latest information indicates that Herrera is not in arms against the United States.

Full reports from Chihuahua City, clearing up the situation, are expected late today.

Catron Believes It Easy For U. S. to Whip Mexico

Senator Catron of New Mexico says General Bell can easily protect El Paso, and "could go through Mexico like wind through a sieve."

"No formidable force could form in Mexico to move on El Paso," said Senator Catron. General Bell has a force of approximately 2,000 infantry and artillery at El Paso.

"With that force he could go through twice that many Mexicans as easy as wind would go through a sieve. The Mexicans will not form in any large hostile force. To do so would be to draw upon them the United States troops, and they are far too cunning for that."

El Centro lies in the Imperial valley, about ten miles from the international boundary. An irrigation project centers there, but its source is a secret. The reason for the request was not revealed, but it was assumed that perhaps danger to the irrigation system was feared.

Herrera Revolt Denied In Official Dispatches

The State and War departments received strong denial today of reports that General Luis Herrera and 2,000 Carranzista troops at Chihuahua had revolted and joined Villa.

The State Department denial came in a report from United States Consul Marion Letcher, at Chihuahua City.

The reports to the War Department came from Major General Funston.

Officials were inclined to accept these reports, but with some reservation.

General Funston, in his telegram to Secretary of War Baker, said: "General Herrera, in a telegram to General Gaviira, strongly denies all reports he has made over to Villa. General Gutierrez, governor of Chihuahua, in a letter to General Gaviira, also denies those reports. Gaviira is the military commander of the Carranza garrison at Juarez. United States Consul Letcher reported that Herrera remains loyal to the de facto government and is still military commander of the Carranza garrison at Chihuahua.

Secretary of War Baker said that he had received no other dispatches from General Funston during the night or early morning. He said that Funston had not asked for additional troops since the Fifth Cavalry and Twenty-fourth Infantry were sent to the border. Secretary Baker would not discuss what steps the department is taking to re-enforce General Pershing's Mexican expedition.

President Gets Reports.

All the reports on Herrera's revolt were laid before President Wilson and the Cabinet.

The sending of more troops to re-enforce Pershing, as well as the border patrol, and also the protocol being arranged with Carranza for use of the northern Mexican railways is being considered.

The State Department awaited Carranza's final approval of the protocol under negotiation. The Cabinet was agreed upon the plan. Delay in its formal ratification was reported due to two causes, desire of this government to include all possible circumstances which may arise from the presence of American troops in the border, and Carranza for concessions which will prevent popular criticism.

Mexico Under U.S. Rule, Is Dream Along Border

By E. T. CONKLE.

EL PASO, Tex., March 24.—El Paso, war capital of the United States, is frankly for war—the more war the better El Paso will like it.

Mexico in American hands is El Paso's dream. Its hotel lobbies today are lined with millionaires who have made their stake in Northern Mexico, who dream of the day Uncle Sam will throw his protection over the rich mining and cattle region of the south and allow them to rule up their millions without fear of revolution.

They are frankly adventurers. Some have discarded the high boots for the patent leather pumps, the horses for the motor. Others, new products, have still the look of the pioneer. For all, Mexico in American hands spells millions.

"Hell, ain't we Americans? Ain't we entitled to the same protection as New York? We made our money just as honestly as Wall Street did and a hell of a sight more so," said one miner who sits in the boards in Wall Street.

These millionaires own vast tracts, rich mines, great forests, mostly by grant of some Mexican dictator.

Labor was cheap. It was easy to run a shoeing iron and shoe a pair of boots. They took chance, but now they ask Uncle Sam to double rivet their title.

Then why St. Louis, New York and Chicago boys should march to death to clear their title, and they don't understand, in fact, most of them are as ready to waddle and go to battle as they are to send others.

A note down the merchants, hotelkeepers, business men to whom uninterrupted traffic spells good living. They fatten as the men higher up prosper. Their works have the same interest. Then, too, they believe open war would mean the end of the menace which has lasted since the Alamo. El Paso, with her 75,000 people, is 60 per cent Mexican.

Across the border are 15,000 more Mexicans at Juarez, with only the shallow Rio Grande, which General Funston could wade. Carranza soldiers at the other end of the international bridge taking toll.

But beyond the appeal of gold, lead, and cattle is another reason. The border has suffered. American cattle have been stolen. American mines and ranches have been plundered. American women have been attacked and their babies at breast slain by the border.

Every town, every hamlet along the border, has the proof in gravesones and wrecked lives. The average Texan hates the Mexican tri-color as the crusader hated the crescent.

War with Mexico may be a matter of politics, business or statesmanship with the great East and Central States, but with the border it is as deep seated as human hatred.

Right or wrong, wise or foolish, the border is for war. The rest of the United States might as well consider that at the start.

Tinkham Bill Would Appropriate $500,000 for Institution in Capital.

The author of the bill says it has the approval of the Monday Evening Club, the Social Service Department of the Episcopal Diocese, the Children's Council, the Association of Bridge Builders and officials connected with atypical schools of the city.

The Tinkham bill will be referred to the House District Committee.

Immigration Bill's Passage Is Forecast

The House, by a vote of 232 to 74, this afternoon determined on immediate consideration of the Burnett Immigration bill.

The vote indicates that the measure, voted by Presidents Taft and Wilson because of the literary test it proposes, will pass overwhelmingly.

Its passage means war with Japan in six months, Congressman Bennett, of New York, declared in opposing consideration.

Congressman Burnett, its author, retorted that had it been in effect to-day, the present trouble with Villa would have been avoided.

AVIATOR GORRELL REJOINS COLUMN

Undaunted by Desert Experience, He Continues Scouting for Pershing's Troops.

COLUMBUE, N. M., March 24.—Army messages from Casas Grandes today indicate that Aviator Edgar S. Gorrell, undaunted by his experiences when lost for forty-eight hours in the Mexican deserts, is again flying ahead of Brigadier General Pershing's expeditionary force.

After replenishing his gasoline supply from an army transport truck, Lieutenant Gorrell soared away toward the field base.

The crew of the transport found Gorrell seated in the shade of his biplane. He had made his way on foot to the station, left a note pinned to a stick of wood and returned to his biplane, after leaving directions where he might be found.

Mother Lives in Baltimore.

Lieutenant Gorrell is the son of Mrs. Charles E. Gorrell, 231 North Charles street, Baltimore. He was born and educated in Baltimore. At that time his parents lived at 417 East Lanvale street and their son attended the elementary schools and Baltimore City College, leaving after his third year to enter West Point, to which he was appointed. The late Senator Isidor Mayner, after graduation from the Point in 1912, he was assigned as second lieutenant to the Thirtieth Infantry, and was sent to Fort Haines, Alaska.

Silver Cup Offered Capital Boy Scouts

To Be Awarded Patrol Making Best Showing in Competition.

To encourage Boy Scouts to be neat and accurate, a silver cup has been provided by the Washington headquarters for presentation to the patrol that makes the best showing at a competition to be held next month.

The accuracy with which the scouts execute their movements on the march, and their personal appearance while in uniform, will determine the winning patrol.

Each patrol will be permitted to enter one patrol of eight scouts in the competition, during which they will be commanded by their patrol leader instead of by the scoutmaster.

The uniform to be worn at the inspection will consist of the regulation national coat, breeches and leggings. Neatness and cleanliness of appearance will count points, including especially the condition of shoes. General deportment while on the field also will be noted.

The competition probably will be held on the Monument Grounds or in Potomac Park.

The cup will be on exhibition at the Boy Scout headquarters in the Corcoran Building early next week. The judges for the contest will be the board of inspectors of the Police Department, which includes Inspector F. B. Cross, Capt. R. E. Doyle, and Capt. Daniel Sullivan.

Stereoscopic slides made during the scout's exhibition on the Monument Grounds last Saturday, which was filmed by several motion-picture week-ends, will be used by Scoutmaster Patton in a lecture he will give before the Home Club of the Interior Department tonight.

The lecture will be repeated at different places in the city next week.
